Every reform promises the people more than reform can get for them.

John C. Fremont.

He was John C. Fremont, penniless explorer from South Carolina. She was Jessie Benton, a dazzling pretty schoolgirl of fifteen, daughter of the great, if peppy, Missouri Senator, Thomas H. Benton.

Fremont, son of a poor widow, was a wanderer and an adventurer from birth. He inherited these traits from the French emigrant father who had died when John was a child. The boy had been expelled from college because he preferred to explore forest trails rather than study Greek. After that he studied surveying and was a member of several Governmental exploring parties. In 1840, with honorary rank of army lieutenant, he came to Washington to complete some official reports.

There, by chance, he met little Jessie Burton, who was still at school. He was twelve years older than she, and was better fitted for camp life than for drawing-rooms. Yet he and Jessie instantly fell in love with each other. Without asking any one's consent they became engaged. Then the girl notified her hot tempered old father. And there were terrible scenes that day in the Benton home.

After the Senator had exhausted his blazing vocabulary in saying what he thought of presumptuous young scoundrels who sought to steal away rich men's daughters, he turned to diplomacy and paid a visit to the Secretary of War.

As a result of that visit Fremont was ordered next day by the War Department to start at once for the far western frontier of Iowa and there to make a long and careful investigation of conditions among the Indian tribes along the Des Moines river. Iowa in 1840 was almost as far, in matter of time, from Washington as is Egypt nowadays. Fremont, as a sworn soldier, had no recourse but to obey the order.

He clearly saw Benton's hand in the affair. But there was no redress. Off he went on the mission, leaving his weeping little sweetheart behind. But he used all speed, and long before he was expected to return he had finished his work on the frontier and was back in Washington.

Jessie, according to the general version of the story, now took charge of the situation. She explained to Fremont that her father expected undoubtedly have him packed off at once on another and longer mission and might keep him out of Washington for years. So she suggested that they marry at once.

Fremont eagerly agreed. And they went secretly to a clergyman and were made man and wife. Benton, learning of it, was furious. There was another violent scene. But, says one historian, "he soon found the young man had in him many qualities that had given the indignant father his own eminent position." And, besides, it was too late to do anything but to make the best of the matter.

So the young couple were duly forgiven, and Benton went in person to the office of the leading Washington newspaper to insert a notice of the marriage. In writing the advertisement he reversed the usual order of things by placing Jessie's name ahead of Fremont's. The desk clerk pointed out the seeming blunder to him. Whereat Benton roared, with a string of red hot oaths.

"Curse it all, sir, it will go as I have written it or not at all! John Fremont didn't marry my daughter. SHE married HIM!"

Even as Benton's mighty political influence had lately been against Fremont, so now it was employed in his favor. Thanks to the Senator's "pull," the young husband was placed in command of an expedition to explore the Rockies. It was this expedition that first won for Fremont his title of "The Pathfinder." Then and always through his bright career his wife's cleverly and his wife's tireless love contributed more to his success than did all other influences put together.

Correspondence

Berea.—An error either of my own or the typesetter's, in my last letter needs correction. Speaking of the Kentucky Christian Endeavor Union that held its annual convention here the first week in May the letter stated that "President Frost presided at all the sessions." This is wrong. Rev. Homer W. Carpenter of Shelbyville, president of the C. E. Union presided at all the sessions and he is a live wire in the great work. Pres. Frost took part in several of the sessions and was made honorary member of the Union, but the only "presiding" which he did was as host at the midday lunch served to the delegates by him every day at Ladies' Hall.

Two other names were omitted in the report of this convention. Two young women whose names will stand beside others—well known as workers for the betterment of humanity—are Miss Georgia Dunn of Lexington and Miss Lewis of Cincinnati.

There was an exciting time here for a few hours Saturday evening. A number of whistles began to blow and kept it up; the bells began to ring, people rushed out of doors with panic stricken faces. Reports began to spread, one was that one of the dormitories were burning, another, that one of the large buildings had fallen and crushed a number of students, and one woman fainted when she heard the last report, feeling sure it was the one where "Nellie" was in class.

Presently a herald came slowly marching along announcing in a monotonous chant "The highway is coming, hurrah, hurrah. The highway is coming, rejoice, rejoice." To the tune "The Campbells are Coming." Then the people's yells were added to the din of the bells and whistles. The Civic League had received a telegram from Chattanooga stating that the Dixie Highway would pass through the town and planned the noisy demonstration.

There are four large churches here. The Christian, Baptist, M. E. and Union. All have regular pastors and splendid Sunday Schools. In addition to these there are about thirty Sunday School classes, taught in different rooms of the college building for the students. A general devotional exercise is held in the Main Chapel, then the 1400 students now here, file out to their separate class rooms. Attending religious services is compulsory on all students. Last Sunday the four churches held their own Sunday Schools, then dispensed with church services and all repaired to the Main Chapel where special memorial services, arranged by Capt. James West Post, G. A. R., were held. The members of the Post occupied reserved seats. The ladies of W. R. C. were seated immediately behind them. The services consisted of a solo, trio, and a quartet appropriate to the occasion, with a memorial address by Dr. Roberts of Union Church. The college and citizens united to show respect and deference to the old soldiers, teaching reverence and patriotism in so doing. Elaborate preparations are being made for Decoration day, the 29th. There will be no school. The faculty, students and many citizens will assist the G. A. R. Post and the W. R. C. in the services. The exercises will begin in the Chapel at 9 a. m., then a parade headed by the college brass band will march to the cemetery for other exercises, including ritual services, then a basket dinner on the campus. The afternoon services will consist of music, an address by President Frost and brief talks from several of the faculty. By special invitation I attended Prof. Knight's S. S. class last Sunday. It was held in No. 14, in Lincoln Hall. This room contains many fine portraits, among them a life size portrait of President Frost, recently painted. It is fine. Prof. Knight has an interesting class of 60 young men and women. Their class motto is "We do things," and if last Sunday's services were a sample, they surely do. The session reminded me of a religious service rather than a S. S. class. Prof. Knight acting as chairman while the secretary called out the names that were to "do" something. The student from Mason county who is "making good" sang a beautiful solo, which with an excellent 10 minute talk from a young man from Vanceburg, Lewis county, made me feel proud of our river county.

ties. The ability shown by these students prove that they will be able to do things worth while when they return home. Another exercise that was especially fine was a quintette beautifully rendered by young men from North Carolina. The closing ten minutes of the hour was devoted to discussion of future work and appointing workers. The class has a fund from which they can draw during vacation for needs in their work. Each member is pledged to assist in S. S. work and to organize new ones where needed during the summer.

SOIL SURVEY OF JESSAMINE COUNTY BEING MADE

Washington, D. C., May 31.—Representatives of the Bureau of Soils, of the United States Department of Agriculture, are now at work upon a complete soil survey of Jessamine County, Kentucky. The party, it is expected will take several months to complete the examination and mapping of the soils of the county.

The Department requests cooperation on the part of farmers and land owners with the Federal Soil Survey. They should be given facilities to make borings and sample the different soils. They are provided with credentials which will be shown upon request.

As soon as they have completed their investigations, they will make a large map showing the various kinds of soils and their location by means of colors and shading. This map will also show the location of the principal roads, schools, churches, railroads and watercourses.

Accompanying the map will be a complete report on the nature of the soils, their suitability for growing various crops, and suggestions for their improvement by fertilizers, cover crops, and crop rotations. This report and the map will not be ready for circulation for some months after completion of the survey.

THE LAST GIFT

In the Group of Handsome Ones Made to the Episcopal Church Consecrated

Yesterday, Trinity Sunday, the elegant pair of polished brass candelabras, given by the King's Daughters were placed in the church of the Nativity. God has greatly prospered the service of this small band of willing workers. The labor of love so humbly begun, years ago, so faithfully continued in Him, is surely "glorifying His Holy Name." A member of Christ, Children of God, are banded together and with heartfelt prayer and earnest service, are speaking loving imitations, that other women, too, may learn of Him. The ascended Lord has left His members each with special work to do, each tongue, each hand, each foot, must do "His will in kind and quantity as His All Wisdom directs," what a wonderful work would be accomplished if, each person, in one little place, should fulfill the task assigned—a perfect whole.

BOILING MUD

Pours Down Sides of Lassen Volcano—Scientists in Peril Zone.

Redding, Cal., May 30.—Lassen Peak burst into violent eruption again today. Another flow of boiling mud is pouring down the sides of the volcano. Fears are felt for the safety of many scientists investigators known to have been in the danger zone.

The eruption today was the first since the destructive outbreak of May 22, and marked the first anniversary of the peak as an active volcano.

As there have been heavy snowfalls since the outbreak a week ago, it is believed that the flood of boiling mud will be even greater than the last and will inundate a large territory.

When the eruption occurred many persons were known to have been in the surrounding territory and even on the peak itself and every effort is being made to assure their safety.

The mud flow today took the direction of Lost and Hat creeks. It was along those streams that devastation previously was wrought.

Forest Supervisor Rushing telephoned to Redding tonight that the eruption broke out in several places on the north side of the peak and that the outbursts appeared finally to unite.

The smoke column seemed heavily laden with ashes and spread out fan shape. Apparently it was unable to lift itself to any considerable height.

A year ago today Lassen Peak broke out with its first eruption since the white race entered California. Since then 90 eruptions, including today's have been observed.

CRYING FOR HELP

Lots of It in Maysville But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed.

Not one more important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble.

It is often the kidney's cry for help. Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys.

Lang Stevens, Maysville, Ky., says: "My kidneys were out of order and I had backache, which extended into my kidneys. The kidney action was irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family, so I gave them a trial. They helped me greatly."

Mr. Stevens is only one of many Maysville people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. Building and Loan Associations Hold Notable Convention in Louisville.

The most notable convention in twenty years' history of building and loan associations in Kentucky, transpired in Louisville last Thursday and Friday when the Kentucky League of Building and Loan Associations held its annual convention there.

A great mass meeting was held Thursday in Macaulay's Theater and every phase of questions pertaining to building and loan operations was clearly defined.

So successful have been the Kentucky associations in stimulating home building that efforts will be made to organize such associations in practically every county in the State and invitations were extended by the seven Louisville associations agreeing to furnish without cost copies of their constitution and by-laws to new organizations.

Many social entertainments were enjoyed by the hundred delegates to the Louisville convention. Eugene Clark, President of the National association was re-elected President of the Kentucky body.

An invitation will be extended to the national association to hold its next meeting in Louisville.

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much, that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work."

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.
